Urgent Appeal from Experts in Child Welfare, Juvenile Justice and Child Development to Halt Any Plans to Separate Children from Parents at the Border

Dear Secretary Nielsen:

We, the below-signed organizations, have well-recognized expertise in the fields of child welfare, juvenile justice and child health, development and safety. We understand that your agency is considering plans to separate children from their parents when they arrive at or are found near the U.S. border. We fear these actions will have significant and long-lasting consequences for the safety, health, development, and well-being of children, and urgently request that the Administration reverse course on any policies that would separate families.

Countless reports have documented that these families are fleeing persecution and violence in their countries, and come here seeking protection. While many come from Central American countries, the parents and children arrive at our border from all over the world, including countries in Africa, the Caribbean, South America, Asia, the Middle East and Europe. According to recent reports, the proposed plan would require that parents be placed in adult immigration detention centers and/or summarily deported, while their children would be transferred to the custody of the Department of Health and Human Services in facilities across the country—as far away as Illinois, Washington, New York, Florida, and Michigan. HHS would bear the responsibility of caring for the traumatized children and finding suitable, alternative caregivers. These children could remain in government care for months or more than a year, during which time the continued separation from their parents would compound their trauma and the time it would take them to recover and return to a trajectory of good health and normal development. Nor would it make any sense to require those children to participate in a formal legal proceeding about their immigration case while separated from the parent who brought them here, who may have critical information—or the only information—about the child’s claim for protection.

There is overwhelming evidence that children need to be cared for by their parents to be safe and healthy, to grow and develop.<sup>1</sup> Likewise, there is ample evidence that separating children from their mothers or fathers leads to serious, negative consequences to children’s health and development.<sup>2</sup> Forced separation disrupts the parent-child relationship and puts children at increased risk for both physical and mental illness. Adverse childhood experiences—including the incarceration of a family member—are well-recognized precursors of negative health outcomes later in life.<sup>3</sup> And the psychological distress, anxiety, and depression associated with separation from a parent would follow the children well after the immediate period of separation—even after eventual reunification with a parent or other family. We are deeply concerned that the proposed plan would formalize such harm by taking children from their parents as a matter of policy.

Family unity is a foundational principle of child welfare law. In order to grow and develop, children need to remain in the care of their parents where they are loved, nurtured and feel safe. Thus parents' rights to the care and custody of their children are afforded particularly strong protection under the U.S. Constitution.<sup>4</sup> While parent-child relationships are generally the province of state law, federal law also recognizes the principle of family unity by providing strong incentives for states to keep children with their parents and to provide services to families to prevent separation and maintain family unity.<sup>5</sup> The proposed changes to your agency's policies would eviscerate that principle.

For all of these reasons, we urge you to abandon any plans to systematically separate children from their families absent evidence that a specific parent posed a threat to the safety and well-being of his or her child, as required by the laws of all 50 states.

Sincerely,
